

The print shop. I'm not quite sure if these even exist any longer. Our small town print shop closed its doors years ago when the internet took over our daily communication. I used to love going there—the smell of the ink, the large machines humming, and all that paper stacked from floor to ceiling. This collection was inspired by those shops. The designs are very striking and include lots of words and simple shapes. We were tempted to only use black and white, but decided a shot of red never hurt! We also included our new favorite neutral, khaki, to soften things up a bit. While we love all the colors together, we think the fabric in this collection would make beautiful red and white or black and white quilts! We can't wait to get started...
